Bring the decision-makers from your organization to build the foundation for your community's coalition at this interactive workshop on June 4, 2013. Come with your ideas for improving transitions of care and leave with an action plan to get your coalition started.

As part of this event, we will share the most recent data related to hospital readmissions across Wisconsin and information about evidenced-based transitions-of-care interventions.

OBJECTIVES:

At the end of this educational session you will be able to:

- Identify potential coalition partners within your community
- Identify potential care transition goals for your community coalition
- Discuss potential community interventions to be implemented by the coalition
- Create a plan to convene an initial coalition meeting

TARGET AUDIENCE:

Staff who have the ability to affect outcomes in the areas of quality improvement or discharge planning, social workers, clinicians and other staff from hospitals, long term care facilities, home health organizations, county health departments, aging and disability resource centers (ADRCs), aging offices, and managed long-term care programs.

You are encouraged to reach out and recruit other health and long-term care organizations within your community. For example, ask your local hospital or ADRC to attend. You will be forming a partnership with others in your geographic area to start your community's journey to better and more coordinated care for patients.
